

Sequence 12 - Environmental Ethics Part 1 (24S1)

Final Activity: Graded Quiz

You have reached the last compulsory activity for this session.

On the next page is a quiz, comprising ten multiple choice questions related to what we have covered in this sequence.

There is only one correct response to each question. You can attempt the quiz up to 3 times. Your score from your last attempt of the quiz will count towards your overall grade for this course.

1

Which of the following philosophers endorses an animal-centered environmental ethical theory?

Choose one of the following answers.

- Jeremy Bentham.
- None of the other options listed here are correct.
- Immanuel Kant.
- Aristotle.

2

Which of the following is not an individualistic environmental ethical theory?

Choose one of the following answers.

- Human-centered environmental ethic.
- Animal-centered environmental ethic.
- Ecofeminism.
- Life-centered environmental ethic.

3

Which of the following can explain why the environment has moral considerability?

Choose one of the following answers.

- Utilitarianism.
- Human-centered environmental ethic.
- Virtue ethics.
- Deontology.

4

What is the essence of moral considerability?

Choose one of the following answers.

- Having the status of being a human baby.
- Having the status of being able to make moral decisions.
- Having the status of being relevant to moral decisions.
- Having the status of being a human adult.

5

What is a moral patient?

Choose one of the following answers.

- Any being that has moral considerability, but lack moral agents' capacities.
- Only a being that is morally virtuous.
- Any being that can deliberate about and act on moral bases.
- Any being that does not belong to the species Homo sapiens.

6

What is one difference between human-centered and animal-centered environmental ethical theories?

Choose one of the following answers.

- Only one of them counts babies as intrinsically morally considerable.
- Only one of them counts babies as morally considerable.
- Only one of them counts dolphins as intrinsically morally considerable.
- Only one of them counts dolphins as morally considerable.

7

What is the central question of environmental ethics?

Choose one of the following answers.

- Should we prevent climate change?
- What is the source of the environment's moral value?
- Is climate change real?
- How does the environment contribute to human well-being?

8

What is a moral agent?

Choose one of the following answers.

- Any beings that belongs to the species Homo sapiens.
- Any being that has moral considerability.
- Only a being that is morally virtuous.
- Any being that can deliberate about and act on moral bases.

9

On which of the following theories is a pet cat considered a moral patient?

Choose one of the following answers.

- Life-centered environmental ethic.
- Human-centered environmental ethic.
- All of the options listed here are correct.
- Animal-centered environmental ethic.

10

On which of the following theories is the environment extrinsically valuable?

Choose one of the following answers.

- Human-centered environmental ethic.
- Utilitarianism.
- Ecofeminism.
- Ecological holism.